WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks lunk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Refuse anything else. At all drug stores, 10c and 25c.

WINTER'S DASTARD
90 HOURS

skipped by OIL-PLATING your engine today

Can you figure on your car's Daily Winter Starting Schedule being any briefer than this?...

|-------------------------------------|
| No. 1 Start * GOING TO WORK |
| No. 2 Start * GOING TO LUNCH |
| No. 3 Start * RETURNING FROM LUNCH |
| No. 4 Start * GOING HOME FROM WORK |
| No. 5 Start * GOING TO THE MOVIE |
| No. 6 Start * GOING HOME FROM MOVIE |

Could half-a-dozen starts or so get you through a day? Will your icy engine turn lukewarm in only 5 or 6 minutes? Even so, just think what that comes to, all through these bad months!... Total: 90 hours!

90 tough hours—and often more. A whole 90 hours when oiling that comes from "fast flow" alone lags far behind the sure lubrication that comes from changing today to OIL-PLATING.

OIL-PLATING is ready to lubricate sooner than any oil ever can flow—sooner than "instantly!"—because patented Conoco Germ Processed oil forces OIL-PLATING into a durable bond with the engine parts. OIL-PLATING becomes part of the parts!

Hourglass Silhouette

Notice the just-below-elbow-length sleeves and the fur-trimmed hat which covers the back of the head. At right is a black silk faille frock, snugly gathered and tucked at the hips to make the waistline seem tiny and the hipline well rounded. The bodice is longer in front than in back and is fastened with jeweled buttons.

CHECK WIDTH & HEEL FITTING

Point No. 5 in Our 6-Point Fitting Plan

Have you ever wondered why we run our fingers so carefully across the vamp of your child's new shoes? We do that to make certain that a slight amount of leather can be drawn between the fingers—otherwise there will be harmful pressure on your child's toes. Perhaps you've also noticed how carefully we check the snug fit of the shoe under the arch and around the heel. Little things? Of course they are. But it's the many little things in our 6-Point Fitting Plan that makes such a big difference in the natural growth of your child's normal, healthy feet.

U. S. EDUCATORS ALIVE TO THEIR RESPONSIBILITY

In our democratic country we have always placed our faith in education.

Politically we trust public opinion, and so we have relied on education to insure that public opinion shall be informed and sound. Economically we have depended on individualism, and so we have charged education with producing better individuals. Socially we rely on gradual and enlightened progress, and so we have placed our faith in universal education to develop minds that shall have social vision.

No other country in the world has ever placed such faith in education. In no other country is every fourth person a full-time student in school or college. In no other country is there an army of more than a million teachers such as our own.

In recent years, however, there has been a great deal of earnest self-examination by American educators. They have been asking one another, "Exactly what is the job we should be doing with all this vast plant?" And "Are we doing it?"

There are several reasons for such questioning. First, since the American economic machine broke down in 1932, it is evident that the education of those who permitted such a collapse might be at fault. And second, a new kind of "education" has arisen in a large part of the world, aimed at "conditioning" students to accept a prescribed body of belief, rather than to become truth-seekers on their own account. Both these new phenomena have led educators to search deeply into the aims and methods of American education.

Most recent of these searchings is a series of articles on the general challenge of democracy to education which make up a whole number of the current Survey Graphic magazine, and in which prominent educators set forth their ideas of the job to be done.

Schools are everybody's business in America, and so it is fitting that everybody give them some thought. Certain it is, as the Survey points out, that when people who have had the benefit of the best education we can devise fall victims of crackpot orators, one-shot economic panaceas, and catch-penny propaganda, it is time to consider whether education has really done the job.

The best evidence of the vitality of American education is this very self-searching on the part of educators. It is only when an educational system, like any system, begins to believe that all has been accomplished, all learned, all perfected, that decay is evident. As long as American educators continue to discuss with their present ardor "What's wrong with education?" there is always hope that education will be kept abreast of modern needs.

Never before was this need more critical. There are threats today to the very basis of what we know as the democratic way of life—the individual and his development as the core of society. It is reassuring to see educators consciously attacking the problem and accepting their responsibility.

TRUCE ON POLITICS?

President Roosevelt has asked for a truce on politics during the European emergency.

The implication was that he doesn't want opposition to his plans purely because they are New Deal plans. He doesn't want Republicans to oppose his measure simply because the Republicans are Republicans. We imagine he will be able to accept opposition from some of the Democrats, because surely he will not expect all Democrats to accept his proposals simply because Democrats are Democrats. But if he demands loyalty from the New Dealers and Democrats along party lines, then he is apt to have opposition from Republicans along party lines.

He can not use the emergency as a springboard for his plea, because he has pleaded one emergency after another as a basis for co-operation, and never during this long string of emergencies has he ceased playing politics. Not simply blunt politics, but politics of the foxy variety.

However, there is an emergency. It was created partly by the President himself when he demanded modification of the neutrality law on the plea that such modification would help the allies. The emergency is now in the hands of Congress. It will be debated between Republicans who oppose repeal of the embargo and Republicans who favor repeal, and among Democrats and New Dealers divided along the same lines. When this Congress, representing the people, comes to a decision of national policy, then it will be time for every American to follow the Congress in whatever it decides to do.

This country was not developed along the lines of letting one man decide the policy on a plea that politics should be adjourned while he acts.

Congress makes the laws. The President puts them into execution, and the people obey them.

FEEL SHEEPISH?

Are you one of the many people who have tried to woo sleep by counting imaginary sheep jumping successively over an imaginary fence? If so, it's time for you to feel sheepish.

It's the wrong approach to Morpheus, says Dr. Louis J. Karnosh, Cleveland physician. Counting sheep, or any similar dodge, says Dr. Karnosh, simply concentrates the mind on the expedient, thus keeping the insomniac wider awake than ever. Reading in bed, or any sort of mental gymnastics, simply defeats the whole plan.

The real thing to do is to relax as much as possible and then try to avoid thinking about anything in particular, thinks Dr. Karnosh. Trying to concentrate too hard on the sheep simply makes you the goat.

SAFETY COMEBACK

After showing slight increases in June and July as compared to a year ago, the traffic toll showed a decrease in August, thus resuming the long trend of reduction month by month. August, in fact, showed the lowest death total for that month, 2690, since 1932. This was accomplished in the face of an increased volume of travel as reflected by gasoline consumption.

It is still possible to show in 1939 a big saving of human lives over 1938, for despite the bad record of June and July, the fatality record for the first eight months of the year is still slightly below that of last year. But with a loss of 18,980 lives already this year there is still plenty of chance for improvement. A battle on the European front that took 18,000 lives would be counted a sanguinary one.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc. Reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

Washington, Oct. 3.—Oddities within the complex Fitzmaurice-Cannally shipping (neutrality) bill which are not widely understood, or at least are not being generally considered by those who are talking on the subject outside Congress.

This is not a cash and carry bill. Under it, the British armament firm Vickers, or any private firm in any country, could obtain unlimited credit for purchase of munitions or any other product.

Only foreign governments owing us war debts are still barred from long term credits (others get 90 days), which means the Germans are not barred because they owe us nothing.

An American ship cannot carry anything to belligerents, which means American ships in the Pacific cannot carry to Australia and New Zealand.

But they can bring anything back from these or other belligerents, which means that American freighters could legally go empty to London and bring back munitions.

Airplanes are exempt. Pan-American can fly to Australia and New Zealand or to any other belligerent, even on the China seas (specifically mentioned for the sake of Pan-Am). American ships can carry anything to Canada on inland waterways, but not on either the Atlantic or Pacific ocean.

Under existing law, neutral nations cannot buy here for transshipment to belligerents, but under the proposed bill, they can.

Britain and France could theoretically get billions of credits here with 90 day limits, and if they neglected to pay, their only penalty would be a requirement of cash thereafter.

Presidential discretion is not widely hampered. He has discretion to restrict credits which might permit him to prevent such a situation as mentioned above. He can deny or affirm credits to governments within the 90 day limits; he can keep American shipping out of combat zones which he will fix; and in general the whole severity of the act depends upon his interpretations of its provisions.

You could not cash a Canadian quarter in the U. S. if the provisions against foreign currency were strictly enforced, although no one expects them to be.

Arming of American merchant ships is prohibited specifically. No one seems to know what German submarine policy is, but if it guarantees the safety of neutral unarmed ships which are not carrying munitions, then no American ships would be sunk under the existing arms embargo law. If Germany now proposes to sink neutral ships carrying all contraband (as indicated by the sinking of Swedish, Norwegian and Danish ships) then the proposed bill would offer non-involvement guarantees above present law to the extent by which it would keep all American ships out of combat zones entirely.

Primary difference it proposes from existing law is to permit shipments of arms and munitions now barred. To this extent it would seem to involve us, by making our arms and munitions factories a natural object of German attack through sabotage. Second most important difference is the one mentioned above—the proposal to keep American ships out of combat zones. To this extent its purposes are conflicting.

Greatest paradox of all is the indication that congressional mail is upwards of 60 per cent against the base point of the bill: repeal of the arms embargo, while its advocates are claiming a favorable majority of 65 to 31 senators for it. When senators are so cool to suggestions of their constituents, many answers must be available. Usual ones are (1) strong backing in the press for neutrality, (2) polls indicating a somewhat different prevailing popular opinion than congressional mail, (3) presidential pressure.

Most impressive answer may be cotton. Wayward southern senators have come back into the fold on this issue. The Democratic party is re-united again. Individual explanations of these returning lost sheep are varied, but there is a prevailing opinion in Congress that the new bill will increase the opportunities for selling to Britain and France and the one export product in which the south is interested is cotton.

Whether this expectation is warranted may be debatable. Britain and France can now buy as much cotton as they can pay for. Yet the wayward seem to agree they would like to help the

"Where has Buff gone?" Tim yelled at Webby.

"No need to speak to me so mad like, Mr. Tim. I don't know no more'n you do. She just said she was on her way and wouldn't be back."

"Where's her father? Where are Mr. and Mrs. Carroll?" "I can't tell you that neither. The last letter Miss Buff had from 'em, they was in Arizona."

George was surprised at the look of frozen misery on Tim's face.

"It's all right, guy," he said gently. "We can always reach her through her father's syndicate. She hasn't disappeared completely."

The other man sank into one of the big chairs.

"That's exactly what she's done, and I know why: because she wanted to."

"But why in thunder should she want to?"

A very smile twisted Tim's lips. "I thought you knew her so well! I thought it was I who didn't understand her, couldn't gauge the motive for what she did! Of course she would go after that Denver business. I think I suspected this all along. I think I knew she wasn't sick—unless she was sick at heart, poor child, over the imbecility of her friends. Don't you see?" he demanded feverishly. "She did what she could for us, which happened to be everything," and then she washed her hands of us; of Boulder. Clean disgusted with the lot!"

In his turn George sat down. "It doesn't make sense to me. Why should she be disgusted with us simply because we'd accomplished what she set out to do?"

"Would you make us some coffee, Mrs. Webb?" Tim requested.

"Mr. George and I didn't have time for lunch today," and the "we" he used was Tim, who had drawn, he explained, "When I said the lot of us, I meant myself, of course. What sort of a girl would she be if she felt the least interest, let alone friendship, in a man who stuck his neck in for her?"

"In the same place in less than a year? Who? If it hadn't been for her, would have got it in the neck, too! She's fed up with us, through, don't you get it?"

"No, I don't," replied the simple Mr. Weckes. "She knew all along the kind of fool you were making of yourself. Good good, Tim, didn't we talk it over—she and I, you and she? Even Iris dumped plans and specifications in her lap. She cared enough then to put them in front of her on the job and show you where you stood. Why should she change her mind about you just because she did that?"

"Unless," he added, "she thought that you were still in love with Iris, that you resented what Buff had done for you. Listen," he demanded, "didn't you call her—telephone even?"

"I telephoned half a dozen times. I called her. I sent her flowers, the same kind you sent her. She knew all about it. I had to hunt up the florist and pay him a whacking sum to open up for me. Then I got a messenger boy to deliver 'em—the roses, I mean."

"She knew they were from you."

"I put my card in with them."

"Anything on it?"

"My name."

George clutched at his vanishing hair. "Suffering cats, guy! Of course it had your name. That's really the purpose of cards, isn't it? I mean—"

A Little Exhausted

"Yes, I know what you mean," Tim said drearily. "Did I put 'With the heartfelt gratitude of a devoted son' on that card?"

"No, I didn't. Maybe I should have, but I didn't. It seemed a case for as few words as possible. Or so it seemed to me. There'd already been too many."

George regarded him unimpressed. "Tim was, as he had repeatedly assured Buff, one of the best. Nevertheless his friend and business partner was finding himself a little exhausted by Tim's affairs of the heart. First Iris, then Buff, then Iris again, now Buff."

"Make up your mind!" he said impatiently; and it betrayed the genuine seriousness of the case that he could be impatient with Tim.

The other man rose as though a spring had been released.

"I have! The minute Webby told us Buff was gone, I'm off. George, 'I'll have to take the car. And—oh, yes!' he paused a moment at the door. 'Look for me when you see me.'"

George made a feeble effort to halt him. "Look here! You can't go off like this! You can't at least let me where you're going, for the love of Mike!"

For the first time in actual months, Tim smiled, showing a line of white teeth.

"Going? How do I know? After Buff, of course. I'll be back when I find her and," he showed his hat at a jaunty angle, settled more closely to his big shoulders.

The next morning when the younger girl's car drew up in front of the entrance Iris was waiting for her, a sleepy belloy staggering under the weight of her suitcase.

"I suppose I can trust you," Iris muttered. She had dark circles beneath her eyes, and her usual delicate make-up was carelessly applied. "I checked out as you told me, but—"

"Get in!" Buff held the door open for her. "I want to be out of town before there's danger of running into anyone we know. Had your breakfast?"

"I couldn't eat."

Something in the forlorn statement stirred Buff as perhaps nothing else Iris could have said. She took her right hand from the wheel long enough to lay it reassuringly on the other girl's.

"Don't worry, honey. Leave everything to me. You're going to be glad this happened. Honestly you are!"

"I hope so," whimpered Iris.

Trail Grows Cold

They stopped in Denver for breakfast. Buff, who had already eaten, sipped a cup of coffee and talked over her plans in a quick, low voice. Iris listened with gradually rising enthusiasm.

Half an hour later they were on Colfax Avenue headed east.

Tim, inquiring at various filling stations, discovered that Buff had bought gas and oil at one of them. After that her trail grew cold. He spent some time at the telephone office endeavoring to get in touch with Lane Carroll. The New York syndicate had refused to disclose his address. In reply to frenzied appeals, Tim had had only the assurance that mail sent to Carroll through their office would be duly forwarded. Finally he sent another message to say that Carroll's daughter, Buff, had disappeared, and it was vitally necessary to get in touch with her parents at once.

This brought results.

"General delivery, Tucson, Arizona, advice consulting police," was the answer.

Tim appealed to the telephone operator who was beginning to evince a little human interest in these messages.

"What do I do next?" he demanded.

"Wire the postmaster at Tucson and ask for this Mrs. Carroll's address. You'll have to tell him it's about his daughter, and even then there's no telling if he'll give it to you. All he's got, Carroll's permission."

He proved himself a true prophet. The postmaster wired: "Will get in touch with party and give you message."

"And," said the operator, "is every damned thing you can do unless you take a plane and fly to Arizona. Better stick around a while, though. If Carroll's within reaching distance he'll phone you at that 'buddy'."

The morning crawled by slowly. Tim had forthrightly cased a check before entering the Western Union office, which was just as well, considering the number of his telegrams. At noon he had his usual lunch at the "buddy."

"Go grab yourself a sandwich, buddy, and maybe your message'll be waiting for you when you come back." The youthful operator was hourly feeling himself of more importance. Tim had a moment of grim amusement at that "buddy."

"He'll be patting my head next, and telling me not to cry!"

Nevertheless, he took this sensible advice. He was rewarded by finding an incredibly lengthy and expensive waiting time on his return. Lance apparently was having hysterics in Tucson. He gave his telephone number, however, and ordered Tim to call him at once.

This proved infinitely more satisfactory. Tim telephoned, outlined the situation and Buff's father listened carefully. When Denver had finished Tucson was considerably more cheerful.

"Why didn't you say in the beginning that she was waiting for you to get here? You had me scared pink for a while. Thought she was kidnapped, or something. Well, my boy, there's nothing to worry about. No, she isn't here—but then she wouldn't have and time to get here no matter how fast she drove. My lease in Chicago has a couple of months to run. She may be there, for all I know. I'll give you the address and you can try her there when you think she's had time to make it."

"But she's winter out here," Tim said, gulping. "It may be blazing sun and glittering sand in Tucson but it's slippery roads and snow here. Buff's driving. I tell you!"

Continued tomorrow.

State Treasury Balance Drops $8,861,464.00

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 4.—(AP)—An eight per cent increase in state government expenditures, combined with a revenue drop, sliced $8,861,464 off the state treasury's general fund balance in the fiscal year ended June 30. The balance dropped from $21,293,717 to $12,432,253.

This was shown Tuesday by Finance Director S. L. Nudelmann in an analysis of state funds placing total disbursements at $225,549,723 during the year, an increase of $16,984,315 over the previous twelve months.

Revenues of the state from all tax sources were $216,027,900 during the same period, a decline of $3,547,895.

Director Nudelmann said larger grants for relief and for gasoline tax distributions to cities and counties accounted for all of the spending increase. Citing a $10,990,000 increase in the outlay for relief, Nudelmann said in a statement:

"If the state had not conserved its funds to meet this emergency, widespread suffering or increased taxes would have been inevitable. The rise in emergency relief expenditures and an increase of $6,040,347 in motor fuel tax disbursements to counties and cities account for the entire increase in the total of state disbursements this year."

Sale tax receipts hit a new high of $81,516,538, up $599,000 over the previous year. Auto licenses yielded $2,339,000 more and gasoline taxes $1,800,000 more than previously but inheritance, liquor, insurance and public utility tax receipts all fell.

Nudelmann reported 47.16 per cent, or $38,440,235 of the sales tax revenues, went for relief. The next largest share, 26.2 per cent, went to the general revenue fund which includes the state department, courts, legislature, prisons, hospitals, old age pensions, normal colleges and the University of Illinois.

Daily Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

In football, the knees, ankles and shoulders are most frequently injured. The thighs are most likely to be bruised.

Weak ankles should always be strapped with elastic or with adhesive tape before practice, and certainly before any game in which the player may be subject to injury. In bandaging an ankle to support it, the tape is wrapped like a figure eight over the ankle and around the bottom of the foot.

An elastic or gauze bandage may be reinforced with adhesive plaster.

Football players suffer with slipping of the cartilages in the knee. The best type of bandage for the knee is one with an X strapping above and below the kneecap. This, also, should be reinforced with adhesive plaster.

Football trainers always have trouble deciding the amount of bandaging and padding that should be allowed to a player. The modern game is very fast and is not a contest between men of bulk exclusively. Too much strapping and too heavy padding interferes with speed.

Sporting goods establishments provide all sorts of special pads and braces for the injuries that are associated with football. Any athlete subject to frequent injuries should have the full protection of these devices.

Most serious of all injuries in football are those affecting the brain and the skull. A concussion of the brain means that the tissue of this vital organ has actually been bruised. The first sign of such an injury is a loss of memory for recent events. A person who has had a concussion may not remember what has happened during the previous hour or two.

The least important symptom is a slight dizziness, but coaches and trainers should not be unmindful of a sudden impact with another player and seems to be dizzy or dazed. The player should immediately be put at rest and the extent of the injury be determined.

Whenever a player has had a head injury, he should be put flat on his back. He should be questioned as to headache and dizziness and given a simple test for his memory of recent events. If he cannot remember the names of his opponents, who is on the offense, the score or similar matters, it is not safe for him to play again.

If he is merely dizzy, he should be permitted to stand and move about to determine whether or not he has any signs of loss of balance. Such symptoms are serious and the player should be removed immediately from the contest to a hospital bed for an examination.

Many layers under the excitement of the game toss away the headgear. This may be a magnificent gesture, but a coach should never permit a player to play without a helmet. There have been far too many cases of concussion of the brain and even fracture of the skull to take a chance without adequate head protection.

Serious overactivity of the thyroid gland, which produces toxic goiter, may occur in women well

HOLD EVERYTHING!

"Let's have another election—it's my turn to be president."

past middle age as well as in girls and young women.

In the past this condition was seldom diagnosed without a definite enlargement and swelling of the gland seen in the neck from the exterior. Now it is known that the amount of enlargement may be difficult to observe, particularly in older women. The doctor may have to make a most careful examination feeling the tissues of the throat, before he is reasonably certain that there is any enlargement or change in the glandular tissue.

Among the signs by which the doctor recognizes overactivity of the thyroid gland are tremors of the hands, projection of the eyes, wasting of the tissues, a rapid heart, rapid breathing, and a high basal metabolic rate. Metabolism is measured by a special apparatus into which the patient breathes. The basal metabolic rate is a measure of the speed of chemical changes going on in the tissues.

Younger people with exophthalmic or toxic goiter may have an excessive or ravenous appetite. Among older people this does not frequently occur. Nor is the flushed warm, moist skin and the busy, rushing activity, which are observed in young people with toxic goiter, often present. Women suffer more with this condition than men, being afflicted eight times as frequently.

The presence of a toxic goiter is such a menace to life that it demands immediate attention. We do not yet know just why the thyroid gland assumes sudden overactivity. Everything possible is done to remove the effects of this overactivity when the condition is discovered.

It may be necessary to put the patient to rest to give his tissues a chance to repair sufficiently so an operation can be performed.

Portions or all of the thyroid glandular tissue can be cut away to bring about prompt improvement and relief of the symptoms.

Sometimes while readjustment to loss of the gland is going on, it is necessary to give thyroid material in the form of the extract taken by mouth. It is important to do the necessary surgery before there has been such permanent change in the eyes and in the other tissues of the body as to make reversion to the normal impossible.

One of the girls on The Telegraph staff who has read more about Martin Dies' committee investigating un-American activities and the speeches of Borah and Pittman than about baseball, came to the offices this morning with offers to take small wagers on the World Series. "I don't know a thing about baseball," she declared, "but I'll take the Yankees." That seemed too good a stab for sheer ignorance of the game and when questioned about her choice she added, "Because it's more patriotic."

ARCHERY MEETING TONIGHT

Paul Derringer, Cincinnati pitcher who is slated for today's opener of the World Series, has been dean of the Reds' staff since 1934, with World Series experience dating from his first major league season, 1931, with the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals. That year, as freshman, just up from Rochester, Paul led the National League with 18 victories against 8 defeats. His switch to Cincinnati in 1933 marked the nadir of his pitching career, for only two years after his league-leading season in victory percentage, he led the league in defeats, exactly 27 against 7 victories. This year his record shows 25 wins and seven losses.

LOCAL FOOTBALL LOOPS GET DOWN TO BRASS TACKS

Rock River and North Central Games Set For Week End

Early season gridiron games are often termed "breathers", "brush-ups" or "power tests", but come the third week of prep school football and there isn't a mentor in the neighborhood who isn't taking the future seriously now.

Teams are more evenly matched, at least as far as school populations are concerned, as the local schools begin their bids for conference honors.

In Dixon the Purple will be host to Mendota here Saturday afternoon in the first conference game for the Lindell-men and the second for Mendota. In their first bid last week the Dewitz-men ended in a 13 to 13 deadlock with the warriors from Belvidere. In previous games Mendota defeated DePue 13 to 0 and lost 7 to 6, to Morris.

Coach C. B. Lindell is expected to announce his probable lineup later in the week, meanwhile he drives his charges each night in an effort to make the conference entry a victory.

First Game at 1 O'Clock

The lightweight game is scheduled for 1:00 o'clock and the heavyweight affair will follow. Milt Vaughn of Rockford, Hal Chasey of Freeport and Ed Claus of Ottawa will be the officials for both games.

In a second conference game for Belvidere Friday night the Boone county team will "entertain" DeKalb, The Purple and Gold hosts were held to a scoreless tie by Dundee in the opening home show and went down the next week before the attack of Crystal Lake, 6 to 0. In the affair with Mendota the Belvidere team showed more power than the score would indicate and statistics revealed that the visitors outplayed their hosts.

DeKalb's heavyweights in two games have defeated Rochelle (6 to 0) and Hinsdale (7 to 0) and Friday's affair should throw an important light on the windup of the North Central conference.

Rock River Conference

The Rock River Conference will have a week end of activity, too, with three loop games on tap.

At Polo the Marcos will meet the Mounders from Mt. Morris on Friday night. Thus far Coach Rolston's Polo team has lost two games by dropping the opener to Mt. Carroll, 15 to 6, and the first conference game was won by Rock Falls, 19 to 0. It will be the first conference encounter for the Schrader men of the Mound-town. In previous games the Mt. Morris team has tied with Harlem of Rockford, 7 to 7, and defeated the Freeport lightweight, 6 to 0. As a result the Mounders are early season favorites to contest the defending championship held by Rock Falls.

Rock Falls at Rochelle

Rock Falls will go to Rochelle with a record which shows no defeats after games with Dixon (6 to 6), Polo (19 to 0), and Sterling (0 to 0).

Morrison, after losing to Sterling, 20 to 0, and to Rochelle, 6 to 0 will go to Oregon for the third conference game on Friday. The hosts has won two games, having defeated Stockton, 14 to 6, and winning their first conference game, 13 to 0, at the expense of Amboy.

Amboy, the seventh member of the conference, will be idle this week end. Non-conference games on the Friday agenda include Kewanee at Princeton and Sterling Community at Sterling Township.

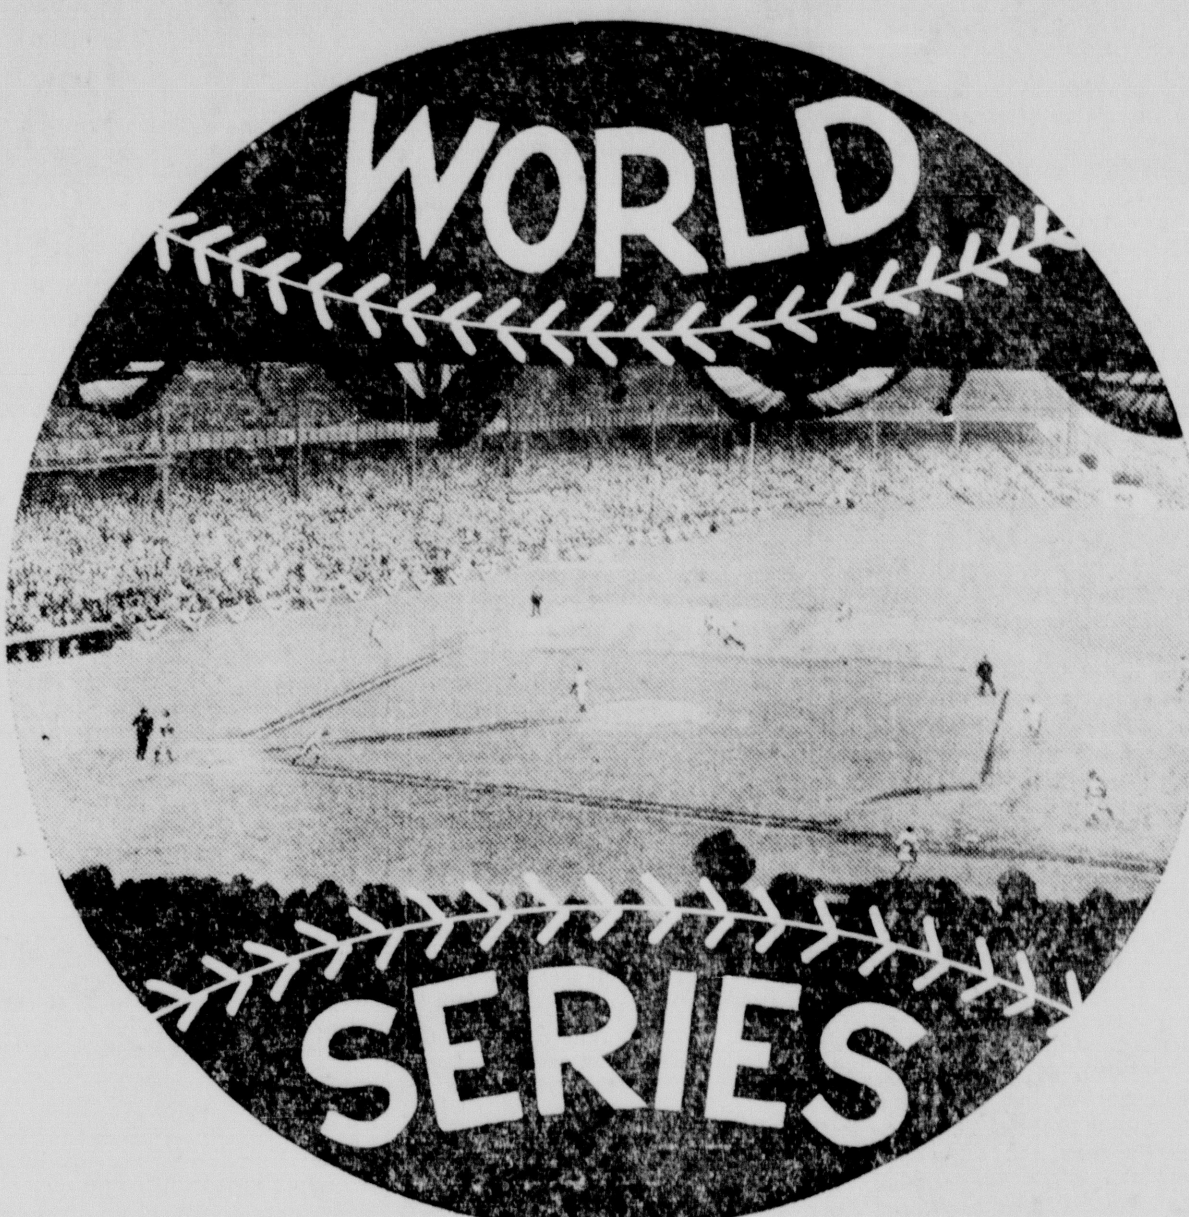

KIESLING INSISTS PIRATES GRID CLUB BETTER THAN ITS RECORD SHOWS WITH 3 LOSSES

Pittsburgh, Oct. 4—(AP)—Assistant Coach Walter Kiesling today took over management of the Pittsburgh professional football Pirates, insisting that "our club is much better than its record of three straight defeats indicates."

He signed a new contract to succeed his close friend Johnny Blood who resigned after the Bucs took a 32-0 whipping from the Chicago Bears of the National Pro league.

"I plan no major changes in playing personnel at the moment," said the 270-pound Kiesling. "Naturally we will have to stand pat right now because we have the New York Giants coming to town on Sunday and we can't do any experimenting against them."

Blood insisted he was through with football after a great playing career of 14 years on the big time but close friends predicted he would be back on the firing line before long. He plans to go to his new Richmond, Wis., home within a few days.

SERIES SIDELIGHTS

By JEDSON BAILEY

New York, Oct. 4—(AP)—Baseball men, after business hours, always sit around unrelenting baseball yarn.

Joe Devine, the Yankee scout who became famous by touting Joe DiMaggio when other major league clubs were passing him up because of a trick knee, is having much fun at the World Series conclave telling how Beans Reardon broke in as an umpire.

Devine was manager of a team at Calgary, Alberta, several years ago, and the day before the season opened he was summoned to the door of his hotel room by a loud rapping. There, a 135-pound, 21-year-old youngster took an oratorical stance and declared:

"Mr. Devine, I am John Reardon, and I am going to umpire your game tomorrow. I just want you to know that I am going to call them as I see them, and you better attend to your own knitting, or else I'll throw you out of the game."

Devine says it is the only time he has been ordered out of a game before it started.

Reardon, of course, is one of the four arbiters working the series here. He also is a former member of the Cincinnati Reds of several years ago.

They're telling a tale about Bill Werber of the Reds, who pushed his way through the mob in the Cincinnati dressing room the day they clinched the pennant, pounded General Powell Crowley in the back and said, "I want to congratulate you, Mr. Crowley, on having such a good ball club."

Branch Rickey of the St. Louis Cardinals bumped into Bill McKee, the Reds' manager, in a hotel lobby last night and said so all could hear. "Bill, the Reds will have to improve a lot to beat our club next year."

Frank Frisch, new Pirate skipper, is aiming to collect another Gashouse Gang at Pittsburgh. "I don't want to say too much this early," he told interviewers, "but I am going to have an aggressive team—and I mean it. The way I feel is that if a player doesn't want to play baseball, he ought to be in some other business."

It's a good trick, even if, etc.

"IF REDS TAKE FIRST"

By JOHN FRYE

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 4—(AP)—With their Reds standing at the fountain of glory in New York, the faithful here can only line up in front of thousands of scoreboards and radios and sing:

"Come veal or come woe, tonight we may move. There was a big feeling in the town that if the Reds can take the first World Series game from the high and mighty Yankees, you can slice the cake. That's going pretty strong in the face of the dope, but the man who sat in the bleachers all season believes to the bottom of his heart that the Yanks would have a hard time recovering from such a blow to pride, percentages and predestination."

It's perfectly sound logic, as far as that goes, for everybody knows where the fellow who gets the jump goes. The only question—and your devoted bleacherite can't say for sure himself—is can they take the first game?

Another question, hanging on the right answer to the first, is would the Reds keep the jump if they got it? There the D. B. has more on the ball. He only has to point to the last St. Louis series, when the Reds got the jump and despite some agonizing hesitation, kept it.

One thing that had your loyal Red fan completely baffled and insulted was the attitude of New York toward the Series.

He just can't make out a city of 7,000,000 not in a lather over something he has kept in his heart for 20 years. You can't tell him it's the fourth straight time for the Yankees, there's a World's Fair going on, and it's a big deal. For instance, here the city council meeting today has been set up an hour so the founding fathers can listen to the radio.

FIRST IN LINE

New York, Oct. 4—(AP)—A 27-year-old unemployed corn-crafter from Altoona, Pa., was first in line at Yankee Stadium today for the opening game of the World Series between the New York Yankees and the Cincinnati Reds.

Charles Bower, fortified by chocolate bars and high hopes of a Cincinnati victory, arrived at the stadium at 9:30 yesterday morning to gain the honor of being the first fan at the first World Series game he has attended.

UNDER BLEAK SKIES

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York, Oct. 4—(AP)—The biggest show baseball has to offer, the time-honored World Series, opens under bleak skies at Yankee Stadium today, and it might prove to be a dinger before the New York Yankees and the Cincinnati Reds finish with each other.

They go at it at 12:30 p. m. (C. S. T.) before a crowd of probably 50,000, with Paul Derringer pitching for Cincinnati and Rufus (Red) Ruffing whizzing his fast one through for the complacent Yankees. Out in Cincinnati at that hour, hearts will stand still and traffic will come to a virtual stop.

The Yankees go into the series a trifle too satisfied with themselves. Three straight world championships have made their attitude almost careless. Probably they have been soothed, too, by the fact the bookmakers were offering 3-to-1 odds against the Reds.

Might Back-Fire But it might back-fire on them. The Reds are a good ball club with a couple of fine pitchers—in Derringer and Ruckey Walters, a nice batting punch and really exceptional team spirit.

In a complete season, if they were playing in the same league, the Yankees doubtless would pull away from the Reds, just like they did from the Boston Red Sox. But it has not been long since the Red Sox came in here and swept a five-game series with Joe McCarthy's wonder boys. So it can be done.

Without much doubt, the Reds are firing their best gun in Derringer today. For one thing, he is the only man in their lineup who ever played in a World Series. As a big league freshman, he pitched for the St. Louis Cardinals against the Philadelphia Athletics in the 1931 series in which "Pepper" Martin ran wild.

Derringer is a smarter, better pitcher than he was in those days. His control is possibly the finest

HOOSIERS, HAWKS TRY COMEBACKS THIS WEEK END

Indiana and Iowa to Meet in First of Conference Tilts

Chicago, Oct. 4—(AP)—Two Big Ten Teams—Iowa and Indiana—collide on the "comeback trail" this week-end at Iowa.

Both escaped defeat in their openers last week and need a victory Saturday to bulwark their mutual ambition to finish better than in 1938 when they were buried deep in the league's second division.

The Hoosiers and Hawkeyes salvaged a game apiece out of their eight-game slates last fall, Iowa scoring a grand total of 46 points and Indiana a meager 21. Adding spice to Saturday's encounter was the fact Indiana defeated Iowa, 7 to 3, last fall for its only triumph.

Iowa got off last week to a rousing start with a 41 to 0 decision over a weak South Dakota team. Triple threat Nile Kinnick accounted for 23 points in spectacular fashion. Indiana recorded a 7-7 tie with Nebraska, a late rally giving the Huskers a draw. If Bo McMillin's sturdy defense is able to throttle Kinnick, Indiana should repeat its 1938 victory. Otherwise, Coach Eddie Anderson, in his first year at Iowa, may get his charges away to a victorious start in the title race.

Other Games

While this battle held the spotlight in Big Ten circles several other conference teams were involved in games of national importance.

Coach Bernie Bierman is drilling his Minnesota eleven long and hard on defensive tactics designed to thwart Nebraska's offense in their annual match Saturday at Lincoln. Wisconsin primed its offense yesterday for an interconference clash with Texas at Madison, the regulars running through the freshmen for 10 touchdowns in scrimmage.

Ohio State reports it expects 70,000 to see the Buckeyes make their debut against a strong Missouri team, paced by ace passer Paul Christman. Another huge crowd was assured for powerful Michigan's opener with Michigan State. Bob Westfall, sophomore, is now running at fullback on the first team, having ousted the veteran Ed Christy.

Oklahoma at Evanston

Northwestern, the third conference team making its initial appearance Saturday, is concentrating on downfield blocking and covering punts in preparation for Oklahoma's invasion of Evanston Saturday. The Wildcats will be at full strength for the game.

Co-Capt. Bob Wabsem, veteran end, who suffered a leg injury last week, stayed out of action yesterday as Chicago's first and second

ON THE SIDE

EDDIE BRIETZ' ROUNDUP OF SPORTS GOSSIP

New York, Oct. 4—(AP)—Looks like the weather man may have more to say about this series than Judge Landis... Among those who didn't laugh at the Giants' drafting Paul Dean was Frankie Frisch... Frankie said he would like to have Dizzy and Duffy with him at Pittsburgh next year... Western sports writers say you will get an idea how tough Minnesota is after it beats Nebraska by two or three touchdowns Saturday. We pick the Yanks in six, but they're no cinch if Ruffing isn't himself today.

When he goes back to Oakland in a couple of weeks, Don Budge will start taking piano lessons... Among them, the Yanks have bought $12,000 worth of series pasteboards... Joe Cronin's ear must be bent from listening to all those congratulations over his new Red Sox contract.

The grapevine says Frank Ryan, former Harvard press agent, will take over Frankie Frisch's beantown broadcasting spot... Old Noodles Hahn, who twirled a no-hitter for the Reds vs. the Phillies in 1900 is Bill McKee's guest at he series... Eddie Mead, manager of Henry Armstrong, is about to figure in a marital main event... This will be Al Schacht's 20th anniversary as official World's Series clown.

Oh! Oh! Lou McKenna, reformed St. Paul sports editor, is general manager of the St. Paul Saints... Last year, his club won the pennant and set a new attendance record; Lou was awarded a plaque as the outstanding minor league figure... This year, the Saints didn't do so hot, either artistically or financially... Just the same, Lou's pals are going to give him another plaque—for showing them he can take it.

"Cronin resigned Red Sox manager," mourns a headline in a Virginia paper... It's not that bad, is it?

teams scrimmaged. The Maroons play Wabash Saturday. Purdue and Illinois, idle this week, nevertheless were working overtime for games October 14 with Minnesota and Southern California, respectively.

The shades of 1914 are falling once more upon the world. Roads are choked with tanks and troops moving up to the "front." The banshee wail of air raid sirens sends civilians scurrying to shelter. Torpedoes streak their white feather of foam on the seas. Big guns roar. Again the nations of Europe are locked in a great conflict whose outcome no one can foretell. The biggest news story since "The War To End Wars" is unfolding.

Well informed Americans are making it a point to keep posted on the turbulent rush of events which are piecing out a grim new chapter of modern history. For an intelligent opinion, they want all the news—from the battlefields on land, the submarine zones at sea, from the warring capitals, the neighboring neutrals and the sensitive commodity markets of the world.

This newspaper is fully prepared to bring its readers that complete story. It is prepared because it is a member of The Associated Press, the world-wide news gathering organization which today maintains the largest and most experienced news staff ever assembled in Europe. There are more than 2,500 alert correspondents on that staff—many times more than the number of men assigned to report the World War for AP a quarter of a century ago.

Several outstanding members of this large, carefully coordinated news gathering army are pictured above. They represent only a few of the 110 American-trained newspaper men located in key spots to cover the news as it occurs and to direct the work of the far flung auxiliary force of resident correspondents and accredited reporters. Many of the men have had previous experience with modern war, some dating back to World War days.

All these men have only one job—to report the facts accurately, promptly and fully for 1,400 member newspapers from Maine to Key West, from New York to San Francisco, and to report those facts without sensational embellishment or wartime hysteria. The minute-by-minute reports of these correspondents are flashed into this newspaper's office day and night and our own staff hurries the dispatches to waiting presses for regular or extra editions, depending on the gravity of the news.

You will find the complete STORY of The Great War at your fingertips in this newspaper every day.

FAY TEMPLETON, FORMER STAR OF STAGE, IS DEAD

Passed Away in Retirement at Age of 74 in San Francisco

San Francisco, Oct. 4.—(AP)—A theatre and music hall career almost as long as her life was ended today for Fay Templeton, toast of the mauve decade, who died in quiet retirement here yesterday at the age of 74.

Little Fay began her stage career at the age of 3, as Cupid. At 8, she was playing Puck, at 15 she was singing in a juvenile Gilbert & Sullivan company, and not so very long afterward she was appearing as double headliner with the beautiful Lillian Russell. She starred in George Cohan's "45 Minutes from Broadway" in 1905.

After 25 years of retirement, she made an unexpected comeback in "Roberta" as "Aunt Minnie", which played a full season in New York and toured the United States and Canada in 1934 and '35.

Only last year she came here to spend her last days very quietly, using the name of her third husband, the late Ridgely Patterson, Pittsburgh, Pa., manufacturer.

Had "Personality"

The body is to be cremated and the ashes shipped east for burial in the cemetery maintained by actors equity.

Song in a deep, throaty contralto, a well-rounded figure and what dramatic critics of the '90s called "personality" made Fay Templeton one of the favorites of the light opera and musical comedy stages of a generation ago. Recording her successes before films had destroyed the profits of "road shows", she was a favorite with theater audiences throughout the country and had success too on the Christmas holiday stage of London.

Miss Templeton literally was a Christmas present to the stage. She was born December 25, 1865, at Little Rock, Ark., the daughter of John Templeton, proprietor of Templeton Opera Company, and Alice Vane Templeton, a singer. When she was 3 1/2 years old, Fay posed behind the footlights as Cupid. Before she had reached her eighth birthday she played "Cupid" in Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream", and when she was 15 she was featured as "Ralph Rackstraw" in one of the numerous "juvenile Pinafors" companies of 1880.

Her opera career ended in her late teens and she played in touring repertoire companies which had "The Mascot", "Grotto-Giraffa", "Chimes of Normandy" and Gilbert and Sullivan works as their stock in trade. She was the first one to play "Bettina" in "The Mascot" in this country and by the time she was 20 was a definite success in soprano roles. In the holiday season of 1886 she appeared in London in an extravaganza, "Monte Cristo, Jr."

She became principal soprano for Weber and Fields in 1896 and in 1905 started her crowning engagement as "Mary" in George M. Cohan's "Forty-Five Minutes from Broadway." After that piece ran its long course, she announced her retirement from the stage.

But the footlights called her back. She appeared in various "revivals" at intervals and then on November 18, 1933, created the role of "Aunt Minnie" in "Roberta" in a musical comedy which lasted a full season on Broadway and toured cities of the United States and Canada from the autumn of 1934 until March, 1935.

Miss Templeton was twice married. When only 15 and while both were members of her father's company, she eloped with "Billy" West, the minstrel. They separated two months and were divorced three years later.

In 1885 she married Howell Osborn, known to New Yorkers of that period as "king of the dudes." The marriage was kept secret because Osborn's friends threatened to disinherit him if he wed an actress and their union was revealed only at Osborn's death in 1895 when he bequeathed $100,000 to his widow.

His third matrimonial venture came August 1, 1906, when she was wed at Ridgely Park, Pa., to William Patterson, a wealthy Pittsburgh manufacturer.

Miss Templeton was a spirited performer, but one of her most spectacular roles was enacted, not on the stage, but in the law courts of London. It grew out of her appearance in "Monte Cristo, Jr."

In that production, an elaborate musical burlesque, she sang a tropical song, "I Like It, I Do." The lord chamberlain, official censor of the English stage, objected both to the song and the singer's costume, deeming that she should drop her tight-fitting voluminous sash. George Edwards, the producer, dismissed Miss Templeton from the cast and she brought suit against him for breach of contract, eventually winning her place and song back and that, too, minus the sash.

Successes Crown Career
She was absent from the footlights for a time then, touring Europe with her husband, Osborn. In 1890 she essayed the title role in "Hendrik Hudson," but the piece was a failure and for three more years she kept away from the stage. In 1893, she scored in "Mine, Favorit" and in 1895 was a hit in Edward E. Rice's "Excelsior, Jr."

The next season she starred three years of continued success with Weber and Fields Music Hall company. It was an aggregation which included Lillian Russell, Dan Daly and other stars and its every "piece" was a hit with Miss Templeton's "Rosa, You Are My Poxy," one of the outstanding tunes of the day.

Her next big success came in Cohan's "Forty-Five Minutes from Broadway." The author at that time was grinding out two or three plays a year, most of them "with music" and almost every one with a "sure-fire" finale in which the stars and stripes were flung to the stage breezes.

The legend is that his play about New Rochelle, the locale of

Retreat of the Army of the Dispossessed

(NEA Radiophoto)

A detachment of the biggest army Poland has now—the pitiful army of the dispossessed—is pictured fleeing from Warsaw, as treaty-signing pangs of Germans and Russians scratched their country off the map. Photo passed by the British censor.

"Forty-Five Minutes," was written first as a straight melodrama, livened up with songs and a dance or two and then, as it developed in rehearsal, the author said: "We'll leave out the flag. We can save this show without it."

His prediction proved true. It drew crowded houses all over the country and was one of Cohan's big money-makers. There were extended engagements in New York and Chicago and lengthy "stands" in other cities. Miss Templeton's flair for comedy had full play and her songs, particularly the "Mary" number, were hummed and whistled from coast to coast.

Perennial "Buttercup" Blooms
Becoming Mrs. Patterson, the soprano again quit the stage. But the theater couldn't forget her entirely. In September, 1911, she was drafted to sing "Buttercup" in a revival of Gilbert and Sullivan's "H. M. S. Pinafore." The following February she helped in the reunion of Weber and Fields.

In 1916 she had a short tour in vaudeville. A decade passed and she again played "Buttercup" and when the Gilbert and Sullivan vogue was resurrected once more in 1931 and 1932, she again was heard in that role.

But her real "comeback" was in "Roberta." In it she played a character part which permitted her to deliver most of her lines while seated and gave her a few bars of song. When the 1934-5 tour was announced one of the most enthusiastic of the troupe was the 70-year-old Fay Templeton. Temporarily looked at the list and hand, Detroit, Chicago and Montreal were among the cities on the itinerary, but there were a lot of one night stands sandwiched in between them. When the Pennsylvania Railroad advertised the list and a vania route was posted, Miss remarked:

"Why not Altoona? We always did well there in the old days."

Smugglers Warned By President Roosevelt

Washington, Oct. 4.—(AP)—President Roosevelt says smugglers had better not attempt to carry supplies from the United States to submarines of belligerents.

He made the statement yesterday at his press conference when his attention was directed to a Philadelphia Record story that smugglers were taking oil, food and drinking water to German submarines off the Atlantic coast.

The president also said the navy might have to put more reserve warships in commission to reinforce the neutrality zone established by representatives of American republics at Panama. He said the navy would determine if additional craft were necessary.

Roosevelt expressed belief that nothing further than study should be undertaken now on plans to curb profiteering. He said he had informed a group of congressmen that he opposed abnormal war profits, but that he believed the subject should be studied more before any action was taken.

Headquarters of Ill. Police at Stateville To Be Enlarged Soon

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Enlargement of state highway police headquarters at Stateville was specified in two contracts involving $21,481 awarded today by the state division of architecture and engineering.

The improvements will include a motorcycle garage, squad, storage and locker rooms for the policemen, remodeling of the clerk's office, private offices for the lieutenant and sergeant, a radio and a gun room.

The construction contract went to the Kinnear Corporation, Chicago, at $16,161, and heating, plumbing, ventilating and plumbing work to W. A. Kenley, Joliet, with a bid of $5,350.

JOB INSURANCE

into the series.

Reds Have Rested
Otherwise, both teams go into the classic in pretty good condition. The Reds, unlike other recent National League winners, have had several days of rest and relaxation.

Their left-fielder, Vally Berger, has come down with a sore toe and might miss today's game, but is sure to be in there before the series ends.

SCRIBES' OUTLOOK

Men who get paid for going to baseball games were the most part in accord with the popular belief that the New York Yankees will win their fourth straight World Series championship.

Polled on the eve of the classic, 36 of 50 sports writers listed the Yanks—all the way from an evasive "The Yanks, I think," to a definite voice for the defending champions. That left only 14 hardy souls who had the courage—or the foresight—to pick the National League champions. Nobody was wild enough to guess the Reds would win the series in four straight games. On the other hand, only three writers picked the Yanks in four straight.

FANS CAN NOW WEAR STYLES WORN BY BASEBALL PLAYERS

Local baseball fans can now wear the shirts worn by their favorite players, according to an announcement made today by Joe Miller of Boynton-Richards Company. This company has just received a large shipment of shapely shirts, tailored by Mack, Cincinnati's famous creators of shirt and pajama styles for men, and worn by Frank McCormick and "Bucky" Walters of the Cincinnati Reds. The popular McCormick, "outstanding ball player of 1939", as all diamond devotees know, is the Reds' slugging first baseman, while "Bucky" Walters is not only Cincinnati's leading hurler but the outstanding pitcher of both major leagues.

COLONELS HOPE TO CLINCH JUNIOR SERIES THIS EVE

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 4.—(AP)—The Louisville Colonels of the American Association, who in one season rose from "rags to riches," came here today hopeful of winning the biggest prize minor baseball has to offer—the Junior World Series championship.

They have only to win tonight's game from the Rochester Red Wings of the International League to capture the title and the major share of the $16,193.85 players' purse.

The Colonels, who finished in the Association cellar last year and in fourth place this season and then got hot to triumph in the playoffs, snared the fifth game of the series last night in Louisville, 3 to 2, to go one up on the Red Wings and end their two-game winning streak.

Norris LaFollette On Opposite Sides

Washington, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The arms embargo debate has put Senators Norris (Ind-Neb) and LaFollette (Prog-Wis) on opposite sides of a major national issue for the first time in their recollection.

Norris is supporting the repeal of the embargo, as recommended by President Roosevelt, while LaFollette is a leader of the opposition bloc. He said the group would fight repeal "from hell to breakfast."

The 78-year-old Norris has been in the senate for 28 years. LaFollette, 44, succeeded his father 14 years ago. Ordinarily the two men get their heads together daily for strategy conferences when important legislation is before the senate.

WORLD SERIES OR NOT, CUBS AND SOX MEET THIS EVENING

Chicago, Oct. 4.—(AP)—World Series or no World Series, the baseball spotlight in Chicago is focused on the opening game of the City Series tonight between the White Sox and Cubs.

While the Yankees and Cincinnati Reds are battling it out for the world title, this city's two big league clubs will be fighting for the municipal diadem.

Given fair weather, a crowd of 30,000 or more may pour into the White Sox park tonight to see Johnny Rigney and the Cubs' Larry French pitch in the initial game.

The Pony Express still rides in the state of Arizona.

Since the series started in 1903, the Sox have won 15 and the Cubs five.

PAUL DEAN MAY GET ANOTHER CHANCE AT BASEBALL FAME

New York, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Paul Dean will get another chance in baseball's big top.

Released to Columbus in the American Association in mid-summer by the St. Louis Cardinals, "Duffy" of the famous "Dizzy and Daffy" pitching combination came back last night in the draft—this time to the New York Giants.

Only 13 players were called up in the conscription, indicating a dearth of material in the minors. The St. Louis Browns, getting first choice, took shortstop Alan Strange of Seattle, who had tried out with them before. The Phillies obtained Pitchers St. Johnson of Rochester and Clyde Snell of Atlanta.

The Athletics chose Elton Hoesett, veteran American League hurler who was with Minneapolis this season, and Pitcher John Babich of Kansas City. The Boston Bees named Pitcher Nick Strincevich of Newark, and Washington took Pitcher Paul Gehman of Birmingham.

Pittsburgh got Dick Lananah, a Chattanooga pitcher; Detroit, Pitcher Tom Seals of Sacramento; the White Sox, Catcher Tom Turner of Houston; the Cubs, Pitcher Jake Mooty of Syracuse, and the Reds, Infielder Russ Bevell of New Orleans.

HUNCH BACKS OF CURACAO

THESE trees have become permanently hunched by the trade winds of Curacao, Caesalpinia coriaria is their name—divi-divi to you; and their mission in life is to aid in the manufacture of our shoes and printed cottons. These dwarf trees are indigenous to the West Indies and the northern part of South America—having been brought over from Europe in 1768, and are members of the family which yields sassafras, and other red woods. They grow to a height only of twenty to thirty feet and bear white flowers, and are one of the scores of strange tropical trees and flowers to be seen along the route of the weekly cruises to the Caribbean.

The pods of the divi-divi are of chief interest to us. They are light brown in color with a tinge of yellow from two to three inches long, and about an inch broad, and are very astringent—the best pods have a content of forty to fifty percent of ellagitannic acid which is used in the making of tannin for the tanning industry and is also used in the printing of cottons largely in the darker shades. The tree produces about 100 pounds of pods annually and the United States annually imports several hundred thousand pounds.

'Diamond Mining' in Refuse Dump

When Mrs. Robert Stranahan of Toledo, O., went to a New York beauty parlor, she wore a $25,000 diamond ring. When she departed, the ring was gone, but she didn't miss it until next day. Meantime the contents of the manicure bowl in which she had left it had been thrown into a refuse can, which in turn had been collected by a garbage truck. Police caught the truck just as it was about to dump its load into a sea-going scow. They're pictured digging in the refuse. After two hours, they found the sparkler, shown in insert.

160 DIXON GIRLS HAD OUTING AT CAMP RALSTON

Get Lessons in Taking Care of Themselves in Wilderness

The ultimate aim of the Girl Scouts camping program is to teach girls how to be at home in the woods and to take care of themselves under primitive natural conditions. Girl Scouts who are trained pioneer campers have the satisfaction of seeking fuel, food and water in the wilderness, of building their own homes, making their own maps and supplying the data for their own weather charts from their own observation of wind and sky.

Camp John G. Ralston, 9 miles northeast of Dixon in Lost Nation, sponsored by the Dixon Girl Scout Council, gave camping opportunity to 160 girls of Dixon and vicinity in five one week sessions.

Campers were privileged to enjoy sketching under the supervision of the Grand Detour artist, Holger Jensen—swimming at Crawford's pool and horseback riding, in addition to regular camp activities. Girls like to return to school fresh from their healthful life in the outdoors.

Hand in hand with physical well-being, Girl Scout leaders feel, goes mental poise. Girls at camp have laughed and sung and been good fellows together. They have shared responsibilities as well as good times. They have had a voice in the day's activities, the democratic way, and have learned to give in gracefully to the majority. Through it all has been the spirit of Girl Scouting—tolerance, courtesy, friendliness, loyalty, honor. An important experience in living, for the hours of one encampment of a fortnight are equal to the number of hours in a school semester.

One girl, asked whether she thought her Girl Scout camping experience would help her to a better student, made this answer: "I learned at camp that other people have a right to their opinions. That there are other ways to living and thinking besides mine. I learned, too, that to live in a democracy one must be willing to accept its responsibilities as well as its privileges." If Girl Scouting helps girls to think like this, we think it is doing its part.

Camping Popular with Scouts
Camp Delavan proved to be popular again this past summer and a greater number of boys enjoyed camping experiences in over night and other short term camps under their own Troop leadership. Every Troop in the city has been out on at least one camp and some have had several camps.

In addition to the camping activities there have been District and Council camporees, swim meets, first aid meets, rallies, boards of review, Courts of Honor and a number of others.

WESTERN NATIONS SERVE NOTICE ON THOSE IN EUROPE

Neutrality Declaration Will Be Communicated To Belligerents

Panama, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Twenty-one republics, having outlined a Western Hemisphere safety zone to insulate them from the European war, have started formal notification to belligerents of their action.

At the suggestion of United States Under-Secretary Sumner Welles, President Juan Demostenes Arosemena of Panama was requested by the inter-American conference to communicate to warring nations the neutrality declaration adopted last night.

The republics voiced their intention of "remaining apart from the European conflict," but declared they would demand their "proper rights" as neutrals. Some delegates called the declaration of Panama a "complement to the Monroe Doctrine." They said it established for the first time the "continental American seas."

The declaration asserted neutral American republics "have the indisputable right to preserve free from all hostile acts" the waters adjacent to the American continents.

Failure of belligerents to recognize the zone would bring "necessary measures" to be decided upon after consultation.

To Adopt Own Methods

The declaration of "general neutrality" allowed each country to adopt its own method of making it effective and fixed uniform standards, rights and obligations of neutrals with belligerents.

It provided that American nations should not permit their inhabitants to jeopardize the neutrality or preparation of expeditions in favor of belligerents on their soil.

Other measures said the nations: Shall not permit their territories to be used as bases for belligerent activities.

Shall bar belligerent warships from their ports or waters in numbers of more than three at a time and permit their presence for not longer than 24 hours.

Must Respect Laws

Shall demand that belligerent craft seeking hospitals in American zones respect neutrality laws and regulations.

Shall hold flights of belligerent aircraft over American territory to be a neutrality infractions.

Shall be authorized to station guards aboard belligerent merchant vessels in American ports and intern such ships for excessive delay in port.

Shall permit transfer "in good faith and without resale of belligerent vessels to neutral American republics.

Shall bar armed merchant vessels from entering their ports when the boats carry more than six-inch cannon on their prows. These vessels shall not have reinforced sides or other offensive equipment.

May exclude belligerent submarines, or admit them on the condition they enter afloat flying the flag of their nation.

Communists in Chicago Number 4,700 Says Dies

Chicago, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Chairman Martin Dies of the House committee investigating un-American activities today placed the communist party's Chicago membership at 4,700 on the basis of evidence obtained here.

The Texas Democrat said investigators who raided the communist party's state headquarters obtained an analysis of the membership which showed milkmen constituted the largest occupational group, with radio workers, newspapermen, theatrical employees, lawyers and artists following in that order.

At the committee's secret hearing yesterday witnesses included Dr. Otto Willumeit, district leader of the German-American Bund; Lieut. Make Mills of the Chicago police department and Mrs. Clinton Barr of Milwaukee.

Mrs. Barr testified concerning the American League for Peace and Democracy, from which she resigned recently. Dr. Willumeit said he was questioned about the Bund's lobby activities in connection with the congressional neutrality dispute.

Chairman Dies said the committee found evidence that leaders of various alien groups were in the pay of foreign powers. He asserted communists in this section had a widespread espionage system "which could be turned into a sabotage ring overnight."

Ex-Governor of Wisconsin Sees America in War

Chicago, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Repeal of the arms embargo, says former Governor Philip F. LaFollette of Wisconsin, would align the nation with one of Europe's warring groups and inevitably draw it into the current conflict.

If the embargo were removed, he told an M. B. S. radio audience last night, "there could be no such thing as our being out of the war." He contended it would only be a question of "how far and how fast we get into it."

LaFollette, a founder and leader of the Progressive party, said "We must not fool ourselves into thinking that we can help fight dictators in Europe and still stay out of war. A nation cannot be half in and half out of war. We either go in or we stay out."

"The moment we embark on the road to war," he added, "we inevitably take on the trappings of dictatorship. x x x As war lengthens in duration and grows in intensity the shackling of freedom becomes more and more absolute."

"When peace comes at last, the terrifying economic collapse which must follow may well become the emergency to continue dictatorial powers and thus destroy Americanism itself."

LaFollette said it was a foregone conclusion that if it is a "prolonged war" it will end in "the complete collapse of the economic and political systems of every nation which participates in it."

"The stability and future of the American nation," he declared, "do not depend on the victory or defeat of any other nation anywhere in the world. They depend on what we do here at home."

Henry Ford Still Thinks Europe's War is 'Phoney'

Detroit, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Henry Ford, long an advocate of the philosophy that "everything usually turns out for the best," says he believes world disarmament would come out of the present European upheaval.

Complete and permanent conversion of the world's implements of war into plowshares long has been one of Ford's most cherished dreams.

He said in an interview that he had not changed his conviction that there was something "phoney" about the conflict on the Franco-German border.

"It has been 'phoney' from the start," he said.

GRADING GUIDE FOR SOY BEANS

Chief of Inspection Bureau Gives Pointers to Its Agents

Chicago, Oct. 4.—(AP)—A guide to grading undeveloped or immature soy beans was outlined today by J. E. Barr, chief of the soybean inspection division of the U. S. department of agriculture.

The guide, which he said was given to federal licensed inspectors in the form of instructions, included these points:

1. Immature beans are considered sound if the individual bean is plump, well-developed and not damaged by weather, heat, frost, etc., and if a cross-section shows the meat to be firm and of a light-green color with a tinge of yellow.

2. The bean is considered damaged for purposes of official U. S. grading if the meat, in cross-section, is an intense green color or if it is green and of a mealy consistency.

3. It is impossible accurately to determine whether such immature soy beans are damaged without cutting them crosswise.

4. Inspectors, to expedite grading of such beans, may reduce the portion of the sample to be separated for damage to approximately 100 grams.

No Change in Standards

Barr said the guide was formulated because there had been "some concern" among producers over possible discounts and misunderstanding over the grading of immature beans.

Barr said the outlined interpretation of the standards would be followed "unless and until general utilization of the oil indicates that it does not accurately reflect the quality of the manufactured product."

He said the Illinois crop was improving steadily, a statement echoed by grainmen at Decatur, one of the largest producing areas.

MECHANIZED CAV-ALRY UNIT I. N. G. IS AUTHORIZED

Location of Squadron to Be Determined By Governor

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Adjutant General Lawrence V. Regan announced today the war department at Washington has authorized the creation of a 23rd division reconnaissance squadron of mechanized cavalry in the Illinois National Guard.

General Regan said location of the squadron, which will be this state's first mechanized cavalry unit, has not been definitely determined but that "it is hoped Springfield would be selected because of its central location."

The adjutant general said full details of organization and equipping of the new unit would not be known until a letter following the telegraphic notification is received from Washington.

He said, however, the squadron will consist of eight officers and 128 men in two troops, with 28 trucks and scout cars as part of its equipment. What type of armament will be assigned to the unit is not yet known, he added.

The squadron will be formed through the conversion of present units, recruiting, or both.

Horner Will Decide

The 106th cavalry in Illinois, which is part of the 23rd division National Guard along with units in Louisiana, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Michigan and Wisconsin, is composed of six units. They are troop "E" at Chicago, troop "F" and machine gun troop at Springfield, and headquarters squadron at Urbana.

Governor Horner, as commander-in-chief of the Illinois National Guard, would decide whether any of the units could be moved under a conversion plan.

General Regan said the problem of housing the unit might be the deciding factor in determining where the new unit is to be stationed.

Plans are being discussed for an armory and garage at Camp Lincoln and it was indicated that if the buildings are constructed they might serve as headquarters for the new unit.

A $100,000 fund appropriated by the legislature in 1935 and re-appropriated in 1937 and 1939 is available for National Guard purposes in Springfield.
